think hmm...everyone should take pictures of their favorite places, and we'll have a vote to see which one should go on the wall in the restaurant!" Feeling very happy with his new idea, Rocky went home and made a list of all his favorite places he wanted to photograph. The next day, Rocky couldn't wait to explore those places around Chimney Rock Inn, eager to capture the best picture. First on his list was his favorite waterfall. "I love how crystal clear the water looks!" CLICK "This would look great on the wall!" Rocky remarked. Next, he went into the woods, surrounded by the tall trees. He looked up and saw the sun rays shining through to the ground below. CLICK "Amazing" said Rocky. Lastly he went to the top of the mountain, by the Chimney Rock itself. He saw a Bald Eagle flying gracefully through the air. CLICK "Beautiful!" Rocky exclaimed. After putting all of his pictures up on the fridge, Rocky chose which one he liked best. Later that day, he went to Chimney Rock Inn to show the picture to everyone. Upon arrival, Rocky was greeted by a young boy who asked: "Hi Rocky, my name is Mark. Can I take a picture with you for the contest?" the boy asked quietly. "Why certainly!" replied Rocky with a smile. CLICK After Mark took his picture with Rocky, he happily thanked him. "Why did you choose to take a picture of me for the contest?" said Rocky. He responded, "Well, Chimney Rock Inn is my favorite place to eat, and I think a picture of you would look great on the wall!" Rocky was delighted, as he smiled and said "Thank you, that made my day!" Sure enough, the picture of Mark and Rocky was voted as the best picture in the contest, and was put on the wall at Chimney Rock Inn for all to see. Pssst. Hey Kids!
